

August 11th, 2014

To whom it may concern:

Ctech Diesel Engineering has been in business since 1998, manufacturing quality treatment products for gasoline, diesel fuel, and heavy fuel oil.

One concern of potential customers is the issue of product safety with respect to the equipment the product is used with. For more than 15 years, Ctech has maintained a product liability policy to cover liability claims on Ctech products relating to damage of customer equipment from product formulations. More than a decade the policy has been in force, there has never been a single claim against Ctech alleging damage to customer equipment caused by any Ctech products.

This is because Ctech products, when used according to manufacturer instructions, cannot damage engines or equipment, as they contain no ingredients which would void any manufacturer's warranty. All ingredients in Ctech products are completely homogenous with the fuel and are consumed completely during combustion.

Tore Adelsten Klever
Ctech owner

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read "Tore Adelsten Klever", is written over the typed name and title.